Impact Assessment David P. Lawrence, 2013-10-14 Offers solutions and best practices to respond to recurrent problems and contemporary challenges in the field Since the publication of the first edition of Environmental Impact Assessment in 2003 both the practice and theory of impact assessment have changed substantially Not only has the field been subject to a great deal of new regulations and guidelines it has also evolved tremendously with a greater emphasis on strategic environmental sustainability and human health impact assessments. Moreover, there is a greater call for impact assessments from a global perspective. This Second Edition, now titled Impact Assessment, reflects its broader scope and the breadth of these many changes, offering students and practitioners a current guide to today's impact assessment practice. Impact Assessment begins with an introduction and then a chapter reviewing conventional approaches to the field. Next, the book is organized around recurrent problems and contemporary challenges in impact assessment: process design and management, enabling readers to quickly find the material they need to solve tough problems including how to make impact assessments more influential, rigorous, rational, substantive, practical, democratic, collaborative, ethical, and adaptive; how each problem and challenge-reducing process would operate at the regulatory and applied levels; how each problem can be approached for different impact assessment types: sustainability assessment, strategic environmental assessment, project level EIA, social impact assessment, ecological impact assessment, and health impact assessment; how to link and combine impact assessment processes to operate in situations with multiple overlapping problems, challenges, and impact assessment types; how to connect and combine impact assessment processes. Each chapter first addresses the topic with current theory and then demonstrates how that theory is applied, presenting requirements, guidelines, and best practices. Summaries at the end of each chapter provide a handy tool for structuring the design and evaluation of impact assessment processes and documents. Readers will find analyses and new case studies that address such issues as multi-jurisdictional impact assessment, climate change, cumulative effects assessment, follow-up, capacity building, interpreting significance, and the siting of major industrial and waste facilities. Reflecting current theory and standards of practice, Impact Assessment is appropriate for both students and practitioners in the field, enabling them to confidently respond to a myriad of new challenges in the field.

Environmental and Social Impact Assessment Christopher J. Barrow, 1997
The Evaluation of Environmental and Social Impact Assessment in Assessing Projects in Developing Countries Akosua Adomako-Bonsu, Carys Jones (Supervisor.), University of Manchester. School of Environment and Development, 2008

This book should be read by anyone commissioning impact assessments who wants to build their understanding of the more progressive and innovative end of the topic. A job well done in the eyes of stakeholders and regulators requires proper social analysis. Jon Samuel Head of Social Performance, Anglo American. The list of authors reads like a who's who in SIA. Academics and practitioners are equally represented among the authors. The book provides a good mix of broad theoretical concepts and specific practical topics. Martin Haefele, Manager Environmental Impact Assessment at Mackenzie Valley Environmental Impact Review Board, Yellowknife, Northwest Territories, Canada. This book gives a very broad overview of where Social Impact Assessment is coming from, where it is now, and where it could go, from an impact assessment tool to an impact management tool. It provides a realistic insight in both the achievements and the struggles of Social Impact Assessment. A recommended read for both those interested in Social Impact Assessment and those in related domains where social issues are gaining increasing importance such as Environmental Assessment and Sustainability Appraisal Rob Verheem Deputy Director Netherlands Commission for Environmental Assessment This important new book outlines current developments in thinking in the field of Social Impact Assessment SIA It advances the theory and practice of SIA and argues that a dramatic shift is required in the way socioeconomic studies and community participation is undertaken The book emphasizes that much more than the act of predicting impacts in a regulatory context SIA needs to be the process of managing the social aspects of development and that there needs to be a holistic and integrated approach to impact assessment It stresses that greater attention needs to be given to ensuring that the goals of development are attained and enhanced This significant addition to the literature will be an invaluable reference for academics consultants and practitioners Environmental and Social Impact Assessment Frank Vanclay, Daniel A. Bronstein, 1995-12-05 Reporting on recent developments in the field of impact assessment this volume critically analyzes such key areas of assessment as technology demography economy risk ecology health development and climate Each area is related back to impact assessment as an overall process Social Impact Assessment and Management F. Larry Leistritz, Brenda L. Ekstrom, 1986 Evaluating Environment in International Development Juha I. Uitto, 2014-04-24 More than twenty years after the Earth Summit was held in Rio de Janeiro in 1992 both national and international actors in governmental and nongovernmental fields are still searching for insights into how sustainable development can be advanced and environmental concerns incorporated into the development agenda more effectively Moreover climate change has emerged as a preeminent challenge to both the environment and to development Evaluating Environment in International Development provides international perspectives and in depth knowledge of evaluating development and the environment and applies evaluation knowledge to climate change mitigation and adaptation The book focuses on the approaches and experiences of leading international organizations not for profits and multilateral and bilateral aid agencies to illustrate how systematic evaluation is an essential tool for providing evidence for decision makers It provides novel and in depth perspectives on evaluating environment and sustainability issues in developing countries Moving beyond projects and programmes it considers aspects such as evaluating normative work on the environment and evaluating environmental consequences of economic and social development efforts This original collection should be of interest to scholars of environment studies development studies international relations sustainable development and evaluation as well as practitioners in international organizations and development and environmental NGOs Mining Ventures in Developing Countries, 1979 Social Impact Assessment And Monitoring Michael J Carley, Eduardo Bustelo, 1984-11-08 Systematic critical review of more than 600 recent publications in social impact assessment and related fields Four sections focus on social impact assessment social impact assessment in an interdisciplinary perspective social assessment in developing countries and other sources of information Monitoring and Evaluating Agricultural Research

Douglas Horton,1993 This sourcebook provides a synthesis of literature and experience that introduces monitoring and evaluation M E principles processes and methods presents examples of M E and identifies useful sources of expertise and information Applications to agricultural research from both industrialized and developing countries are presented The book will be an indispensable guide and reference for agricultural research managers as well as development workers and trainers involved in agricultural research management

Report of the Regional Technical Workshop on Sustainable Marine Cage Aquaculture Development ,2009 The workshop focus was on environmental impact assessment and monitoring and aquaculture licensing for marine aquaculture cage systems It also aimed at identifying constraints and shortcomings that need to be dealt with to support the development of the cage industry and facilitate investments from the private sector The document contains a set of suggestions and recommendations with regards to technical and policy requirements needed to support the growth of the aquaculture sector as a whole and more specifically cage fish farming

Unesco Reports in Marine Science ,1995 FAO Informes de Pesca ,2009 The Regional Commission for Fisheries RECOFI Regional Technical Workshop on Sustainable Marine Cage Aquaculture Development held from 25 to 26 January 2009 in Muscat Sultanate of Oman was organized following the endorsement of the biannual work plan of the Working Group on Aquaculture WGA by the Commission at its fourth session Jeddah Kingdom of Saudi Arabia 7 9 May 2007 The activity was endorsed in view of the growing importance and interest of this aquaculture sub sector across the region The workshop focus was on environmental impact assessment and monitoring and aquaculture licensing for marine aquaculture cage systems It also aimed at identifying constraints and shortcomings that needed to be dealt with to support the development of the cage industry and facilitate investments from the private sector The document contains a set of suggestions and recommendations made by the experts with regard to technical and policy requirements needed to support the growth of the aquaculture sector as a whole and more specifically cage fish farming RECOFI members have been encouraging cage aquaculture over the years however the current level of development varies considerably among the countries and in general cage aquaculture can only be considered an economic activity in its infant stages of development The major constraints identified in the establishment of fish cages particularly along the northwestern shores of the Gulf have been the limited availability of suitable farming sites characterized by shallow waters highly fluctuating salinity and temperature levels and inadequate sea currents Other limitations included price competition from wild caught fish inadequate farming technologies for the region and the limited availability of endemic candidate species of commercial importance suitable for cage aquaculture The report also contains three review documents on marine cage aquaculture in the region regulation of Norwegian net cage fish farming and a review on cage aquaculture

licensing procedures prepared as background discussion papers for the workshop With specific regard to environmental impact assessment EIA the discussions held at the workshop clearly indicate that there is a need for the region and individual Commission members to develop an ad hoc EIA format based on the conditions of the local marine environment as this would determine the level of detail and elements needed to complete a meaningful and useful EIA study The experts also agreed on the importance to establish regional Environmental Quality Standards EQS for fish farm sites in order to set the limits for maximum permissible impact on the area exploited by the cage farming industry and assist in establishing monitoring programmes With regard to cage aquaculture licensing the experts acknowledged that a clear licence system is required for exercising legal and administrative control over aquaculture operations as it confers different rights and obligations and allows public control with regard to environmental protection and the economic sustainability of the farming practices Furthermore it was noted that the legislation involved and process in aquaculture licensing should be transparent readily available and include information on processing time payable fees etc A proposed cage aquaculture licence procedure was discussed and proposed at the workshop based on the format developed and adopted by the Sultanate of Oman Other matters discussed at the workshop included the occurrence of hazardous algal blooms in the Gulf and its effects on fish farming and the possibility of establishing a regional fish cage farm for demonstration research and training purposes
