ECOLOGY

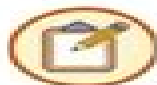

Introduction

The structure and dynamics of a community also depend on the feeding relationships between organisms—the trophic structure of the community. The transfer of food energy up the trophic levels from its source in plants and other autotrophic organisms (primary producers) through herbivores (primary consumers) to carnivores (secondary, tertiary, and quaternary consumers) and eventually to decomposers is referred to as a food chain. Food chains are relatively short and this is attributed either to the inefficiency of energy transfer along the chain (energetic hypothesis) or the instability of long food chains (dynamic stability hypothesis). Food chains are not isolated units but are linked together in food webs. Ecologists summarize the trophic relationships of a community by diagramming a food web with arrows linking species according to who eats whom.

Expected Learning Outcomes

After accomplishing the exercise, the student can:

1. explain how the energy flows and how matter is recycled in an ecosystem.

Activities

Examine a sample food chain, construct a food chain, food web and energy pyramid and explain energy transfer in trophic levels

- A. Using the following food chain (Fig 1), answer the questions below.
 1. What type of organism is the grass?
 2. Which animal is an herbivore or primary consumer?
 3. What would happen to the population of snakes if the population of hawks increased? Why?
- B. Construct a food chain for the following: An owl eats a snake, the snake eats a frog, the frog eats a grasshopper, and the grasshopper eats the plant. Label the producer, primary consumer, secondary consumer, tertiary consumer, and the highest consumer.
- C. Using the food chain from question no. 2, construct an energy pyramid.
 1. Which animal has the most amount of available energy?
 2. Which animal has the least amount of available energy?
