Football Clubs and the Global Transfer Market Thijs A. Velema, 2025-02-06 This is the first book to examine labour markets in professional football from the perspective of football clubs rather than players Drawing on data from the eight biggest European football leagues the hub of the global player transfer market the book explores how and why clubs scout the market for new players why they let players go and how they use their academies to identify and develop young talent Arguing that clubs aren t fully rational actors when it comes to player transfers and talent development it demonstrates that clubs talent policy is most often a bet on high player turnover alongside local recruitment It shows that most transfers take place domestically between clubs within country borders using sociological analysis to explore the investment of clubs in domestic labour markets and offers new insight into the internal operation of clubs in the way that they manage their first team squads and youth academies and how this often creates conditions of anxiety and insecurity that isn t in the best interests of clubs or players International in scope and shining new light on sports labour markets and organisational behaviour in sport this book is fascinating reading for any advanced student researcher policy maker or practitioner with an interest in sport business and management talent identification and development or international business or human resource management

Chall,1990 African football migration Paul Darby,James Esson,Christian Ungruhe,2022-01-25 The global success of football icons like Samuel Eto o Didier Drogba and Mohamed Salah has fuelled the migratory projects of countless young men across the African continent who dream of following literally and figuratively in their footsteps Drawing on over a decade of ethnographic research African football migration captures and chronicles the aspirations experiences and trajectories of those pursuing this highly prized form of transnational migration In doing so the book uncovers and traces the myriad actors networks and institutions that affect the ability of young people across the continent to realise social mobility through football s global production network The book sheds critical light on the barriers to social mobility erected by neoliberal capitalism and how these are negotiated by aspiring African footballers It also generates original interdisciplinary perspectives on the complex interplay between structural forces and human agency as young players navigate an industry rife with commercial speculation While a select few reach the elite levels of the game and build a successful career overseas the book vividly illustrates how for the vast majority trying their luck through football results in involuntary immobility in post colonial Africa These findings are complemented by rare empirical insights from transnational African migrants at the margins of the global football industry and those navigating precarious retirement from careers as players African football migration offers essential coverage of why and how African youth and young men have become actors in the global football industry revealing the complex implications of transnational mobility both imagined and enacted Forthcoming Books Rose Arny,1997 instruction      Football, Place and National Identity David Storey, 2021-10-19 Given its popularity international football might be viewed as a prism through which the imagined community of the nation becomes closer to a manifest reality with matches providing examples of that community collectively rejoicing or crying The sport potentially sheds insights on the complexities of ethnic and national identity as it is a medium through which allegiances are re produced and expressed Alongside the internationalisation of club teams international representative teams also appear to be becoming more trans national with players born outside that country but with family connections to it playing in the national colours Increasing flexibility of regulations governing international representation means that countries can potentially select from a considerably broader pool of talent drawing on players with ethnic or cultural connections to the country For example for a number of decades now the Republic of Ireland team has included sizeable numbers of non Irish born players sons and grandsons of Irish emigrants Similar tendencies are clear in the selection of English born players of West Indian origin for football teams representing Caribbean countries Colonial connections and related migration flows explain France s selection of players born in places such as Algeria or Morocco but brought up in France The successful French teams of the late 1990s and early 2000s drew heavily on players from a multiplicity of ethnic and geographic origins Conversely many African countries select French born players of African origin thereby reclaiming some of the sons of their extensive diasporas and a sizeable number of players born in Europe have competed in the Africa Cup of Nations in recent years In this way historical colonial relationships and associated migration flows provide the backdrop to the more eclectic nature of national representative teams Elsewhere this amalgamation of both civic and ethnic senses of national identity has allowed teams like Turkey and Croatia to tap into their extensive emigrant pool This book focuses on one dimension of the intricate connections between football place and politics It investigates the switching of national sporting allegiance by some footballers from their country of birth to country of residency or family origins examines the reasons behind the recent growth of the phenomenon and explores reactions to this      Football, Politics and Identity James Carr, Daniel Parnell, Paul Widdop, Martin J. Power, Stephen R. Millar, 2021-06-06 This book presents a series of fascinating case studies that show how the lives and bodies of clubs players and fans around the world are enmeshed with politics It draws on original research in countries including England Scotland Ireland Poland Mexico Algeria and Argentina and includes both historical and contemporary perspectives It explores some of the most important themes in the study of sport including sectarianism migration fan activism and national identity and shows how football continues to be tied to political events symbols and movements This is fascinating reading for any student or researcher working in sport studies political science sociology or contemporary history      African Footballers in Europe Ernest Yeboah Acheampong, Malek Bouhaouala, Michel Raspaud, 2019-09-30 African Footballers in Europe traces the social and economic evolution of African football and examines the strategies and resources that players mobilise in their migrations with a particular focus on Give Back Behaviours how players contribute to their countries or communities of origin It shines new light on contemporary migrations labour markets in sport and processes of development in Africa Using a multidisciplinary approach and Weberian methodology to analyse players Give Back behaviour the book highlights the complex rationale behind this behaviour based on a combination of social cultural and economic elements It features interviews with former and current African professional players providing a vivid picture of the role of communities in players migration projects the allure of the European football market and investment initiatives that can contribute to local and regional development This is a vital read for academics researchers and students of sport sciences sociology of sport sport management sociology geography political sciences management sociology of Africa migration studies sociology of the labour market and economic sociology It is also an important resource for professional organisations NGOs football agents football administrators federations confederations and governments
