The Evolving Maritime Balance of Power in the Asia-Pacific Lawrence W. Prabhakar, Joshua Ho, Walter Samuel Grono Bateman, 2006 The Asia Pacific region has emerged as the hub of global geo political geo economic and geo strategic significance in the post Cold War period The rise of China and the resurgence of India will be the hallmark for the next 50 years How this surge in power is accommodated by the incumbent powers like the United States and Japan and how the new regional powers like China and India manage the power politics that emerge will be the key determinants of regional stability This volume examines the national maritime doctrines as well as the nuclear weapons developments at sea of the four major powers in the Asia Pacific namely China India Japan and the United States to see if the evolving dynamic is a cooperative or a competitive one In particular the volume looks at the evolving paradigms of maritime transformation in strategy and technology the emergent new maritime doctrines and evolving force postures in the naval orders of battle the role and operations of nuclear navies in the Asia Pacific and the implications and impact of nuclear weapons ballistic missiles and sea based missile defence responses in the region Sample Chapter s Chapter 1 Cooperation or Competition in Maritime Asia Pacific 544 KB Chapter 3 Maritime Strategic Trends in the Asia Pacific Issues and Challenges 1 534 KB Contents Issues Trends and Paradigms in Maritime Asia Pacific National Maritime Doctrines and Capabilities Nuclear Weapons and Missile Defences The Maritime Dimension in the Asia Pacific Readership Policy makers academics research analysts and students interested in maritime security in the Asia Pacific region

Assessing the Asia-Pacific Rebalance David J. Berteau, Michael J. Green, Zack Cooper, 2014-12-22 This report seeks to clarify the stated objectives of the US rebalance strategy reviewing regional responses and assessing the status of the rebalance which is critical to reinforcing regional stability by strengthening US relationships presence and capabilities The authors evaluate both public statements and visible implementation of the rebalance strategy as viewed not only from Washington but from regional capitals as well Maritime Balance of Power in the Asia-Pacific Nanyang Technological University. Institute of Defence and Strategic Studies, 2005 The Evolving Maritime Power of Balance in the Asia-Pacific Lawrence W. Prabhakar, Joshua Ho, Walter Samuel Grono Bateman, 2006 The Asia-Pacific Rebalance Naval Postgraduate School, 2014-12-02 This book analyzes the development of the Asia Pacific rebalance and its possible effects on United States naval strategy over the next several decades The goal is to develop a better understanding of the Asian rebalance in order to improve future strategic choices governing the employment of the United States Navy in Asia It argues that the Asia Pacific rebalance and its effects continue to emphasize the importance of the U S Navy due to the increasing importance of U S economic political and security interests regionally In conjunction with increasing regional threats from China and North Korea as well as non traditional threats such as climate change or terrorism the importance of U S naval presence and its interaction regionally will continue to be pivotal to future U S policy in the region To accomplish this analysis it is necessary to describe the development of modern U S naval strategy the historic involvement and role of the United States Navy in the Asia Pacific and what the Navy has done substantively to integrate with the new strategy and how current policy choices can affect future U S naval objectives Examining several different future scenarios and U S security policy goals in the Asia Pacific it will briefly look at costs and benefits of each situation with specific focus on the naval missions of conventional deterrence and the prevention of regional conflict as well as its impact on regional confidence building measures and the Navy s ability to assist in humanitarian disaster relief operations It concludes that the United States Navy can continue to adapt to the desired policy goals as set forth by the Asia Pacific rebalance It can achieve success through an increased prioritization of resources to the Asia Pacific increased political sustainability of U S naval forward presence in the region and to develop a new U S maritime strategy that reflects new geo strategic realities Maritime Security Strategy in the Asia-Pacific Region Committee on Armed Services United State,2016-10-19 America s national interests in the Asia Pacific region are deep and enduring We seek to maintain a balance of power that fosters a peaceful expansion of free societies free trade free markets and free commons air sea space and cyber These are values that we share with increasing numbers of Asia s citizens For 7 decades administrations of both parties have worked with our friends and allies in the region to uphold this rules based order and to enlist new partners in this shared effort an effort that now extends to states like Indonesia and Vietnam No country has benefited more from a peaceful regional order in the Asia Pacific region than China Unfortunately we increasingly see a pattern of behavior from China that suggests that some of our highest hopes for our relationship are not materializing and that call into question for nations across the Pacific whether China s rise will in fact be peaceful Asia-Pacific Rebalance 2025 Michael Green,Kathleen Hicks,Mark F. Cancian,2016-02-04 In 2015 Congress tasked the Department of Defense to commission an independent assessment of U S military strategy and force posture in the Asia Pacific as well as that of U S allies and partners over the next decade This CSIS study fulfills that congressional requirement The authors assess U S progress to date and recommend initiatives necessary to protect U S interests in the Pacific Command area of responsibility through 2025 Four lines of effort are highlighted 1 Washington needs to continue aligning Asia strategy within the U S government and with allies and partners 2 U S leaders should accelerate efforts to strengthen ally and partner capability capacity resilience and interoperability 3 the United States should sustain and expand U S military presence in the Asia Pacific region and 4 the United States should accelerate development of innovative capabilities and concepts for U S forces The Changing Maritime Scene in Asia Geoffrey Till,2016-04-29 Is naval conflict in the Asia Pacific region becoming more likely On the face of it this seems likely nearly all countries in the region are rapidly modernising their navies and expanding their maritime capabilities at a time of increasingly rancorous disputes over sovereignty This is especially the case in the East and South China Seas with their supply of fish and largely untapped resources in oil and gas Across the region there is a growing recognition of the economic importance of the sea both for its resources and for the crucial shipping it facilitates But economic growth goes both ways developing increasing interdependence between the countries of the region Expanding trade is subject to serious threats from pirates drug smugglers and other forms of maritime crime and navies and coastguards are coming together to combat them Which will prevail the tendency to compete or the tendency to cooperate In reviewing the maritime policies of the major countries of the region this volume aims to answer this question Asia's Naval Expansion Geoffrey Till,2017-10-03 The navies of China India and to a lesser extent Japan are expanding rapidly at present This has the potential to alter the US dominated naval balance in Asia Pacific but it also raises a question are the regions powers involved in a naval arms race Naval development is and always has been a crucial indicator of economic and political development It shows the emergence of a significant shift in strategic weight from West to East But within the Asia Pacific Region alongside growing economic and institutional integration there are geo political tensions that threaten the regions stability and peace The balance between the two determines the form that naval development in that region is taking Some aspects of this suggest the beginnings of a naval arms race that would have profound consequences for the region and the world

Sea Power and the Asia-Pacific Geoffrey Till, Patrick Bratton, 2012-02-07 This volume examines the rise and fall of sea powers in the Asia Pacific region

Asian Maritime Strategies Bernard D Cole, 2013-10-15 This book is concerned with both the national security concerns of Asian maritime nations and the security of the Asian maritime commons These are defined as the Pacific and Indian Oceans and associated seas bays and gulfs with their included sea lines of communication SLOCs The most useful geographical designation for maritime Asia is the Indo Pacific Bernard Cole provides both a survey of the maritime strategies of the primary nations of the Indo Pacific region and an evaluation of the domestic and international politics that drive those strategies The United States Canada Russia Japan North Korea South Korea China the Philippines Brunei Indonesia Vietnam Singapore Malaysia Myanmar India Pakistan Iran the smaller Indian Ocean and Persian Gulf states are all surveyed and analyzed The United States Japan China and India not surprisingly draw the most attention given their large modern navies and distant strategic reach The author concludes that the United States remains the dominant maritime power in this huge region stretching from Canada to the Persian Gulf despite its lack of a traditionally strong merchant marine U S maritime power remains paramount due primarily to its dominant navy The Chinese naval modernization program deservedly receives a good deal of public attention but Cole argues that on a day to day basis the Japanese Maritime Self Defense Force as its navy is named is the most powerful maritime force in Far Eastern waters while the modernizing Indian Navy potentially dominates the Indian Ocean In fact a focus of this work is the exemplary description of all the region s navies with the author noting the naval arms race that is underway particularly in the area of submarine acquisition Cole is careful to couch this phenomenon in the regional concerns about Chinese naval expansion and the desire to ensure a continued massive U S naval presence The current naval developments in the region evince elements of a naval arms race but lack the coherent maritime strategies to make naval developments dangerous to regional peace and security Most telling will be whether United States power and focus remain on the region while adjusting to continued Chinese maritime power in a way acceptable to both nations No other current or recent work provides such a complete description of the Indo Pacific region s navies and maritime strategies while analyzing the current and future impact of those forces
