Reallocation of Water Supply Storage Project, John Redmond Lake ,2002 Industrial and Host Associated Stress Responses in Food Microbes. Implications for Food Technology and Food Safety Lorena Ruiz,Abram Aertsen,Christophe Nguyen-The, Michael G. Gänzle,Avelino Alvarez-Ordóñez,2017-10-19 Throughout the food processing chain and after ingestion by the host food associated bacteria have to cope with a range of stress factors such as thermal and or non thermal inactivation treatments refrigeration temperatures freeze drying high osmolarity acid pH in the stomach or presence of bile salts in the intestine that threaten bacterial survival The accompanying plethora of microbial response and adaptation phenomena elicited by these stresses has important implications for food technology and safety Indeed while resistance development of pathogenic and spoilage microorganisms may impose health risks for the consumer and impart great economic losses to food industries reduced survival of probiotic bacteria may strongly compromise their claimed health benefit attributes As a result substantial research efforts have been devoted in the last decades to unravel the mechanisms underlying stress response and resistance development in food associated microorganisms in order to better predict and improve i the inactivation of foodborne pathogens and spoilage microorganisms on the one hand and ii the robustness and performance of beneficial microorganisms on the other Moreover the recent implementation of system wide omics and single cell biology approaches is greatly boosting our insights into the modes of action underlying microbial inactivation and survival This Research Topic aims to provide an avenue for dissemination of recent advances within the field of microbial stress response and adaptation with a particular focus not only on food spoilage and pathogenic microorganisms but also on beneficial microbes in foods Staff Paper ,2004-05 Progress in Passive Solar Energy Systems ,1983 Kansas Reports Kansas. Microorganisms Yong Xiao,Feng Zhao,Haoyi Cheng,2018-11-14 Microbial electrochemical systems MESs also known as bioelectrochemical systems BESs are promising technologies for energy and products recovery coupled with wastewater treatment and have attracted increasing attention Many studies have been conducted to expand the application of MESs for contaminants degradation and bioremediation and increase the efficiency of electricity production by optimizing architectural structure of MESs developing new electrode materials etc However one of the big challenges for researchers to overcome before MESs can be used commercially is to improve the performance of the biofilm on electrodes so that electron transfer can be enhanced This would lead to greater production of electricity energy or other products Electrochemically active microorganisms EAMs are a group of microorganisms which are able to release electrons from inside their cells to an electrode or accept electrons from an electron donor The way in which EAMs do this is called extracellular electron transfer EET So far two EET mechanisms have been identified direct electron transfer from microorganisms physically attached to an electrode and indirect electron transfer from microorganisms that are not physically attached to an electrode 1 Direct electron transfer between microorganisms and electrode can occur in two ways a when there is physical contact between outer membrane structures of the microbial cell and the surface of the electrode b when electrons are transferred between the microorganism and the electrode through tiny projections called pili or nanowires that extend from the outer membrane of the microorganism and attach themselves to the electrode 2 Indirect transfer of electrons from the microorganisms to an electrode occurs via long range electron shuttle compounds that may be naturally present in wastewater for example or may be produced by the microorganisms themselves The electrochemically active biofilm which degrades contaminants and produces electricity in MESs consists of diverse community of EAMs and other microorganisms However up to date only a few EAMs have been identified and most studies on EET have focused on the two model species of Shewanella oneidensis and Geobacter sulfurreducens The Kansas City Review of Science and Industry ,1884
