Globalization, Health, and the Environment Greg Guest, 2005 Leading health scholars reveal the impact of globalization on human health as it is mediated through environmental change They explore the destabilizing impact of globalization on the planet's ecology and on the health of the human populations that are dependent on the delicate global bionetwork Their timely case studies describe the cultural adaptations of indigenous populations to their changing environments evaluating their technological and global political economic processes The authors analyze local and global public health strategies examine the association between globalization and demographics and offer creative solutions for future health policies This book will be a valuable resource for professionals in international health medical anthropology sociology and geography environmental studies and globalization studies

War and Nature Jurgen Brauer, 2009-10-15 The inherent dangers of war zones constrain even the most ardent researchers with the consequence that little has been known for certain about the effects of war on stable environments War and Nature sifts through the available data from past wars to evaluate the actual impact that combat has on natural surroundings Examining conflicts of various kinds the long war in tropical Vietnam the relatively brief and highly technical wars in the Persian Gulf and various civil wars in Africa and South Central Asia fought with small arms Brauer asks whether differences in technology location and duration are critical in causing environmental and humanitarian harm A number of unexpected conclusions are drawn from this data including practical agendas for collecting scientific evidence in future wars and suggestions about what the world's environmental and conservation organizations can do One thing War and Nature does is to show us how globalization can be a force harnessed for good ends

Global Capitalism and Climate Change Hans A. Baer, 2012-06-28 Many progressive scholars particularly in the social sciences have increasingly come to acknowledge that anthropogenic climate change constitutes yet another contradiction of global capitalism This book constitutes an effort to develop a critical social science of climate change one that posits its roots in global capitalism with its emphasis on profit making a treadmill of production and consumption heavy reliance on fossil fuels and commitment to ongoing economic expansion It explores the systemic changes necessary to create a more socially just and sustainable world system that would possibly start to move humanity toward a safer climate and discusses the role of a burgeoning climate movement in this effort Rethinking Environmental History Alf Hornborg, John Robert McNeill, Juan Martínez Alier, 2007 This exciting new reader in environmental history provides a framework for understanding the relations between ecosystems and world systems over time Alf Hornborg has brought together a group of the foremost writers from the social historical and geographical sciences to provide an overview of the ecological dimension of global economic processes with a long term historical perspective Readers are challenged to integrate studies of the Earth system with studies of the World system and to reconceptualize human environmental relations and the challenges of global sustainability Immanuel Wallerstein renowned Yale sociologist and originator of the world system concept closes the volume with his reflections on the intellectual moral and political implications of global environmental change Global Visions, Local Landscapes Lisa L. Gezon, 2006 In her new book Gezon argues that local events continuously redefine and challenge global processes of land use and land degradation She challenges analytical distinctions between separate local and global spaces rather proposing that the global is one aspect of the local to the extent that people in any given locale must act within the parameters of policies authorities and material conditions that have sources outside of the reach of immediate local networks Her ethnographic study of Antankarana identifying rice farmers and cattle herders in northern Madagascar weaves together an analysis of remotely sensed images of land cover over time with ethnographies of situated negotiations between human actors She focuses in particular on the interplay of political authorities including family based elders a regional indigenous authority and an NGO charged with enforcement of conservation policies in the context of specific contests over resource access Gezon takes a micro political approach in evaluating conflicts that result in a change in control over local resources by global or supra national policies capital or personnel Her book will be particularly valuable to researchers and students in anthropology geography sociology and environmental studies and those involved in conservation and resource management

The World's Scavengers Martin Medina, 2007-05-03 Medina tells us that up to 2% of the urban population in developing countries survives by salvaging materials from waste for recycling which represents up to 64 million scavengers in the world today Despite these numbers we know little about the impact of scavenging on global capitalism development The author examines its historical evolution and its linkages with formal and informal sector productive activities in capitalist and non capitalist societies in case studies from Mexico Brazil Colombia Argentina Egypt the Philippines and India His new book radically alters popular perceptions on scavenging demonstrating that many widely held beliefs are wrong scavenging is not primarily the activity of the poor nor is it a strictly marginal activity the economic impact of scavenging is significant and can increase industrial competitiveness and scavenging can be compatible with a sustainable waste management system Scavenging represents an adaptive response to poverty yet at the same time it can be a resource to cities whose contributions should be recognized and understood World in Motion Gary M. Kroll, Richard H. Robbins, 2009 The essays collected in World in Motion all address the same issue The global paradox that modern prosperity has entailed extreme environmental degradation Gary M Kroll and Richard H Robbins present readings covering all principal viewpoints on this matter from the neoliberal belief that environmental and social problems can be fixed through a growing economy to the critics of globalization who equate growth with environmental degradation This book asks an important question Can we simply accelerate growth under the assumption that increased prosperity and new technologies will allow us to reverse environmental damage Or do we need to transform our modes of living radically to maintain the health of the world around us

Global Warming and the Political Ecology of Health Hans A. Baer, Merrill Singer, 2009 Hans Baer and Merrill Singer inventory and critically analyze the diversity of significant and sometimes devastating health implications of global warming using a range of theoretical tools from anthropology medicine and environmental sciences

Mobilizing Science Sabrina McCormick, 2009 Mobilizing Science theoretically and empirically explores the rise of a new kind of social movement one that attempts to empower citizens through the use of expert scientific research Sabrina McCormick advances theories of social movements development and science and technology studies by examining how these fields intersect in cases around the globe McCormick grounds her argument in two very different case studies the anti dam movement in Brazil and the environmental breast cancer prevention movement in the U S These and many other cases show that the scientization of society where expert knowledge is inculcated in multiple institutions and lay people are marginalized give rise to these new types of movements While activists who consequently engage in science often instigate new methods that result in new findings and scientific tools these movements still often fail due to superficial participatory institutions and tightly knit corporate government relationships
