Redford, 1989 Despite intense interest in this biologically diverse and ecologically important region the mammals of South America are still not well known Filling a large gap in the literature this volume provides a survey and synthesis of current knowledge of the more than 650 species of land and marine mammals found in Ecuador Peru Bolivia and Brazil Third in a series that reviewers have described as state of the art Journal of Biogeography and invaluable to anyone interested in the mammalian fauna of the Neotropics Quarterly Review of Biology this volume follows the format of its acclaimed predecessors Chapters present not only up to date taxonomic information but also ecological and behavioral characteristics conservation status and distribution maps for most species Numerous illustrations are provided to assist in field and laboratory identification including exquisite color and black and white plates by Fiona Reid New to this volume are chapters contributed by experts on the mammalian fossil record of this region and on its current biodiversity and biogeography An appendix summarizes changes to the nomenclature that have altered the scientific names used in the first two volumes Volumes 1 and 2 of Mammals of the Neotropics which are also available describe the mammals of Panama Colombia Venezuela Guyana Suriname and French Guiana volume 1 and Chile Argentina Uruguay and Paraguay volume 2 The fourth and final volume of this series will cover the mammals of Mexico and Central America

Frugivory and seed dispersal: ecological and evolutionary aspects T.H. Fleming, Alejandro Estrada, 2012-12-06 Any scientific discipline needs a theoretical framework to guide its development and to sharpen the questions its researchers pursue In biology evolution is the grand theoretical framework and an historical perspective is necessary to understand present day biological conditions In its formative years the modern study of the fruit frugivore mutualism was guided by the specialist generalist paradigm developed by D Snow D McKey and H Howe Howe reviews the current status of this evolutionary paradigm and points out that it has been dismissed by many workers before being adequately tested This is because ecologists working with the tropical plants and frugivorous birds for which the paradigm was originally developed rarely measure the seed dispersal effectiveness of different disperser species He indicates that this paradigm still has heuristic value and suggests that several additional ecological paradigms including the concept of keystone species of plants and frugivores and the role that frugivores play in density dependent mortality in tropical trees are worth studying The concept of seed dispersal quality has been central to discussions of fruit frugivore coevolution Schupp thoroughly reviews data bearing on this concept constructs a hierarchical framework for viewing disperser effectiveness and points out that disperser effectiveness depends on both the quantity and quality of seed dispersal Effectiveness in turn affects both evolutionary and ecological relationships between dispersers and their food plants
