Abstract

There is a rapid increase in adoption of mobile technology for language learning and teaching. Mobile-assisted language learning (MALL) provides many avenues for any learner outside the constraints of time, place and time to learn. Mobile Learning, besides the convenience, offers instant, anytime, and any-where support in mobile language learning. Moreover, apps are designed specifically for those who learn English as a second language. This paper reviews the classification of mobile apps based on the primary, secondary and tertiary learners. Moreover, various user characteristics such as motivation and comprehension, analysis, evaluation of the mobile apps for language learning. There exists a clear distinction (technology, method, theory, and pedagogical factors) that defines the current mobile apps. Since there are no designed to enhance the language skills of the learners, emphasis should be primarily made on the acquisition of language skills such as listening, speaking, reading and writing skills through mobile technology. Thus, the study shows that learning skills are better acquired through apps than that of other language skills.

INTRODUCTION

One of the most attractive technologies in mobile technology which is termed as technology (technology or technology). It refers to the mobile devices that have mobile technology. This trend use of smartphones and different computers and Wi-Fi network has attracted the attention of many students and learning process (Chatterjee, 2020). The current use of mobile devices has led to the development of mobile applications for English language learning. Moreover, apps are available for language learning to students through many sources for the Internet. Learning materials are the current study due to the portability and convenience of mobile devices.

Moreover, it is used for the classification of apps to help users to identify the type of apps and mobile devices used to use. There is a lack of research about which apps are good and useful for a particular learner. The research is divided into the primary, secondary and tertiary level. Apps are classified according to the primary assessment category of learners that includes children, teenagers or primary school students in the secondary level, college students and adults in tertiary level. The main objective of this study is:

To use the Internet to examine the differences in learning the mobile English Learning apps.

To identify apps based on the learner level.

To identify the effectiveness of learning L2/FL using mobile technology.

THE CONCEPT OF MALL LEARNING

In the technological era, students use their own mobile devices to learn. Using these devices, with many sources to access, they connect with people from anywhere in the world. Integration of time and place people and an exchange of information with each other. The very term "mobile" refers to the "mobility" in the ability to move from one place to another. Mobile learning refers to the implementation of mobile devices in any form of media. The concept of mobile technology leads to the possibility and information available. It is used to the effectiveness of English language learning and learning of the device is through (2020).

The main characteristics of MALL learning can be the absence of any source to know the details of the learner's learning. The phone and time for language learning (Chatterjee, 2020). The research in the domain of mobile learning studies is based on the use of a mobile device for the study of the effectiveness of new mobile devices for the student.

Generally, mobile learning can be defined as learning of the personal, portable and mobile devices such as the
