Global Catastrophic Risks Global Catastrophic Risks:

Global Catastrophic Risks Nick Bostrom, Milan M. Cirkovic, 2011-09-29 A Global Catastrophic Risk is one that has the potential to inflict serious damage to human well being on a global scale This book focuses on such risks arising from natural catastrophes Earth based or beyond nuclear war terrorism biological weapons totalitarianism advanced nanotechnology artificial intelligence and social collapse Global Catastrophes Seth Baum, 2017 The most extreme risk are those that threaten the entirety of human civilization known as global catastrophic risks The very extreme nature of global catastrophes makes them both challenging to analyze and important to address They are challenging to analyze because they are largely unprecedented and because they involve the entire global human system They are important to address because they threaten everyone around the world and future generations Global catastrophic risks also pose some deep dilemmas One dilemma occurs when actions to reduce global catastrophic risk could harm society in other ways as in the case of geoengineering to reduce catastrophic climate change risk Another dilemma occurs when reducing one global catastrophic risk could increase another as in the case of nuclear power reducing climate change risk while increasing risks from nuclear weapons The complex interrelated nature of global catastrophic risk suggests a research agenda in which the full space of risks are assessed in an integrated fashion in consideration of the deep dilemmas and other challenges they pose Such an agenda can help identify the best ways to manage these most extreme risks and keep human civilization safe Global Catastrophic Risk Assessment Henry H. Willis, Anu Narayanan, Benjamin Boudreaux, Bianca Espinosa, Edward Geist, 2024 Researchers describe global catastrophic risks from artificial intelligence asteroid and comet impacts climate change nuclear war pandemics and supervolcanoes including causes likelihood consequences uncertainties and possible changes Natural Global Catastrophic Risks Lara Mani, Douglas Erwin, Lindley Johnson, 2022 Natural catastrophic risks encompassing hazards such as Near Earth Object NEO impacts and large magnitude eruptions have threatened the continued flourishing of humanity since its origins with the geological record providing us with a unique window to understand their impacts The end Permian NEO impact event and the eruption of large igneous provinces flood basalts throughout geological history resulted in rapid onset mass extinction events threatening the continuation of life on Earth In this chapter we present updated thinking on the threats posed by both large magnitude eruptions and NEO impacts We argue that a survivors bias continues to fuel narratives that the threats posed by such risks are negligible and that existential and global catastrophic risk scholarship fails to acknowledge the evolving risk landscape that humanity has created With increased global populations and an over reliance on the systems and infrastructures that sustain our societies we have cultivated a new mechanism by which natural hazards can cascade to become globally felt catastrophes However fuelled by advancements in the field of Planetary Defense for asteroid deflection we suggest that more can and must be done to build humanity s resilience to natural global catastrophic risks emphasising the importance of building civil protection against natural catastrophic risks

An Anthology of Global Risk SJ Beard, Tom Hobson, 2024-09-03 This anthology brings together a diversity of key texts in the emerging field of Existential Risk Studies It serves to complement the previous volume The Era of Global Risk An Introduction to Existential Risk Studies by providing open access to original research and insights in this rapidly evolving field At its heart this book highlights the ongoing development of new academic paradigms and theories of change that have emerged from a community of researchers in and around the Centre for the Study of Existential Risk The chapters in this book challenge received notions of human extinction and civilization collapse and seek to chart new paths towards existential security and hope The volume curates a series of research articles including previously published and unpublished work exploring the nature and ethics of catastrophic global risk the tools and methodologies being developed to study it the diverse drivers that are currently pushing it to unprecedented levels of danger and the pathways and opportunities for reducing this In each case they go beyond simplistic and reductionist accounts of risk to understand how a diverse range of factors interact to shape both catastrophic threats and our vulnerability and exposure to them and reflect on different stakeholder communities policy mechanisms and theories of change that can help to mitigate and manage this risk Bringing together experts from across diverse disciplines the anthology provides an accessible survey of the current state of the art in this emerging field The interdisciplinary and trans disciplinary nature of the cutting edge research presented here makes this volume a key resource for researchers and academics However the editors have also prepared introductions and research highlights that will make it accessible to an interested general audience as well Whatever their level of experience the volume aims to challenge readers to take on board the extent of the multiple dangers currently faced by humanity and to think critically and proactively about reducing global risk

Doom Niall Ferguson, 2021-05-04 All disasters are in some sense man made Setting the annus

horribilis of 2020 in historical perspective Niall Ferguson explains why we are getting worse not better at handling disasters Disasters are inherently hard to predict Pandemics like earthquakes wildfires financial crises and wars are not normally distributed there is no cycle of history to help us anticipate the next catastrophe But when disaster strikes we ought to be better prepared than the Romans were when Vesuvius erupted or medieval Italians when the Black Death struck We have science on our side after all Yet in 2020 the responses of many developed countries including the United States to a new virus from China were badly bungled Why Why did only a few Asian countries learn the right lessons from SARS and MERS While populist leaders certainly performed poorly in the face of the COVID 19 pandemic Niall Ferguson argues that more profound pathologies were at work pathologies already visible in our responses to earlier disasters In books going back nearly twenty years including Colossus The Great Degeneration and The Square and the Tower Ferguson has studied the foibles of modern America from imperial hubris to bureaucratic sclerosis and online fragmentation Drawing from multiple disciplines including economics cliodynamics and network science Doom offers not just a history but a general theory of disasters showing why our ever more bureaucratic and complex systems are getting worse at handling them Doom is the lesson of history that this country indeed the West as a whole urgently needs to learn if we want to handle the next crisis better and to avoid the ultimate doom of irreversible decline

Managing Extreme Technological Risk

Catherine Rhodes, 2024-05-21 This book reflects on work done through the Managing Extreme Technological Risk METR project a pioneering research programme within the Centre for the Study of Existential Risk University of Cambridge METR has been both an exercise in academic engineering to address major global challenges and a research programme that extends beyond traditional academic outputs into methodological development and innovative forms of expert engagement and outreach Managing Extreme Technological Risk explores how the METR programme developed a model that is needed to effectively understand risks to the survival of humanity as well as their management and mitigation It reflects on the challenges faced and lessons learned in the process of building a research community focused on this aim This book brings together findings and future considerations from a key formative phase not just for the Centre but for the field of existential risk and aligned areas of research as a whole It relates the story of this journey and outlines some of the programme's specific findings There is an overall focus on what has been learnt for approaching the study of existential risk and how this can and must be taken forward by others urgently and at scale

Propositions in the Making

Roland Faber, Michael Halewood, Andrew M. Davis, 2019-11-13 How do we make ourselves a Whiteheadian proposition This question exposes the multivalent connections between postmodern thought and Whitehead's philosophy with particular attention to his understanding of propositions Edited by Roland Faber Michael Halewood and Andrew M Davis Propositions in the Making articulates the newest reaches of Whiteheadian propositions for a postmodern world It does so by activating interdisciplinary lures of feeling living and co-creating the world anew Rather than a logical assertion Whitehead described a proposition as a lure for feeling for a collectivity to come It cannot be reduced to the verbal content of logical justifications but rather the feeling content of aesthetic valuations In creatively expressing these propositions in wide relevance to existential ethical educational theological aesthetic technological and societal concerns the contributors to this volume enact nothing short of a Whiteheadian Laboratory

Towards an Integrated Assessment of Global Catastrophic Risk Seth Baum, 2019

Integrated assessment is an analysis of a topic that integrates multiple lines of research Integrated assessments are thus inherently interdisciplinary They are generally oriented toward practical problems often in the context of public policy and frequently concern topics in science and technology This paper presents a concept for and some initial work towards an integrated assessment of global catastrophic risk GCR Generally speaking GCR is the risk of significant harm to global human civilization More precise definitions are provided below Some GCRs include nuclear war climate change and pandemic disease outbreaks Integrated assessment of GCR puts all these risks into one study in order to address overarching questions about the risk and the opportunities to reduce it The specific concept for integrated assessment presented here has been developed over several years by the Global Catastrophic Risk Institute GCRI GCRI is an independent nonprofit think tank founded in 2011 by Seth Baum and Tony Barrett i e the authors The integrated assessment structures much of GCRI s thinking and activity and likewise offers a framework for general study and work on the GCR topic Global Governance and International Cooperation Richard Falk, Augusto Lopez-Claros, 2024-03-07 The Global Governance Forum and the Global Challenges Foundation collaborate in this collection in their concern that the UN Charter and the contemporary infrastructure for international cooperation are no longer fit for purpose and lack the instruments resources and legitimacy to address the catastrophic risks threatening our future Twenty eight contributors offer thoughtful proposals for reforming existing international institutions and creating new ones to build a more peaceful prosperous and just world covering themes such as the management of weapons of mass destruction collective security arrangements justice and equity in economics human rights migration and refugees climate mitigation and food security all bearing on the health of both people and planet The vital project of this century is building institutions that will underpin global governance in coming decades requiring imagination persistence empathy and confidence that we will find a path to enhanced mechanisms of binding international law and the resources to make that happen The volume is essential reading for scholars and researchers on international politics and public policy and indispensable for diplomats and government agencies Risks and Benefits of Energy Systems International Atomic Energy Agency, 1984 The Era of Global Risk SJ Beard, Martin Rees, Catherine Richards, Clarissa Rios Rojas, 2023-08-23 This innovative and comprehensive collection of essays explores the biggest threats facing humanity in the 21st century threats that cannot be contained or controlled and that have the potential to bring about human extinction and civilization collapse Bringing together experts from many disciplines it provides an accessible survey of what we know about these threats how we can understand them better and most importantly what can be done to manage them effectively These essays pair insights from decades of research and activism around global risk with the latest academic findings from the emerging field of Existential Risk Studies Voicing the work of world leading experts and tackling a variety of vital issues they weigh up the demands of natural systems with political pressures and technological advances to build an empowering vision of how we can safeguard humanity s long term future The book covers both a comprehensive survey of how to study and manage global risks with in depth discussion of core risk drivers including environmental breakdown novel technologies global scale natural disasters and nuclear threats The Era of Global Risk offers a thorough analysis of the most serious dangers to humanity Inspiring accessible and essential reading for both students of global risk and those committed to its mitigation this book poses one critical question how can we make sense of this era of global risk and move beyond it to an era of global safety Bibliographie Mensuelle United Nations Library (Geneva, Switzerland),2010 The School Science Review ,2001 Perilous Progress Robert Kates,Chris Hohenemser,Jeanne X Kaspersen,1985-10-30 New Reproductive Technologies and the Science, Industry, Education, and Social Welfare Systems in Canada Canada.
