Global Economic Prospects 2004 Global Economic Prospects 2004:

Global Economic Prospects 2004 World Bank,2003      Global Economic Prospects 2006 ,2006 International migration the movement of people across international boundaries to improve economic opportunity has enormous implications for growth and welfare in both origin and destination countries An important benefit to developing countries is the receipt of remittances or transfers from income earned by overseas emigrants Official data show that development countries remittance receipts totaled 160 billion in 2004 more than twice the size of official aid This year s edition of Global Economic Prospects focuses on remittances and migration The bulk of the book covers remittances      Global Economic Prospects 2009 The World Bank,2008-12-09 The eruption of the worldwide financial crisis has radically recast prospects for the world economy Global Economic Prospects 2009 Commodity Markets at the Crossroads analyzes the implications of the crisis for low and middle income countries including an in depth look at long term prospects for global commodity markets and the policies of both commodity producing and consuming nations Developing countries face sharply higher borrowing costs and reduced access to capital This will cut into their capacity to finance investment spending ending a five year stretch of developing country growth in excess of 6 percent annually The looming recession presents new risks coming as it does on the heels of the recent food and fuel crisis Commodity markets meantime are at a crossroads Years of fast GDP growth contributed to the rise in commodity prices while the slowdown provoked by the financial crisis has seen those same prices plummet However other factors were also at play notably a period of low investment in commodity supply capacity during the 1990s due to low prices and reduced demand from the countries of the former Soviet Bloc In the longer run slower population growth is expected to ease the pace at which commodity demand grows while commodity producers are expected to discover sufficient new supplies and improved production techniques to prevent any acute shortages from developing In part this is because prices are projected to be higher than they were in the 1990s which will induce necessary investment in exploration and production by firms Higher prices will also promote greater conservation and substitution with more abundant alternatives while policies to limit carbon emissions and boost agricultural investment and the dissemination of efficient techniques will also contribute This year s Global Economic Prospects also looks at government responses to the recent price boom Producing country governments have been more prudent than during earlier booms and because they have saved more of their windfall revenues they are less likely to be forced to cut into spending now that prices have declined The spike in food prices tipped more people into poverty which led governments to expand social assistance programs Ensuring such programs are better targeted toward the needs of the very poor in the future will help improve the capacity of governments to respond effectively the next time there is a crisis      Global Economic Prospects 2007 World Bank,2006 Over the next 25 years developing countries will move to center stage in the global economy Global Economic Prospects 2007 analyzes the opportunities and stresses this will create While rich and poor countries alike stand to benefit the integration process will make more acute stresses already apparent today in income inequality in labor markets and in the environment Over the next 25 years rapid technological progress burgeoning trade in goods and services and integration of financial markets create the opportunity for faster long term growth However some regions notably Africa are at risk of being left behind The coming globalization will also see intensified stresses on the global commons Addressing global warming preserving marine fisheries and containing infectious diseases will require effective multilateral collaboration to ensure that economic growth and poverty reduction proceed without causing irreparable harm to future generations

Global Economic Prospects 2005 World Bank,2005      Global Economic Prospects 2005 ,2004 This annual publication analyses the global and national dimensions of the investment climate for developing countries in terms of the policy and institutional environment This edition examines the growth of regional trade agreements which have risen eight fold in two decades with currently as much as 40 percent of global trade taking place among countries that have some form of reciprocal regional trade agreement Issues discussed include regional trading trends effects of regional agreements on trade creation trade facilitation and services investment intellectual property rights and labour mobility whether the proliferation of agreements poses risks for multilateral trading system and if so options for managing them The report finds that agreements leading to open regionalism that is deeper integration of trade as a result of low external tariffs increased services competition and efforts to reduce cross border and customs delays costs are effective as part of a larger trade strategy to promote growth Although regional agreements can prove beneficial to member countries they can have adverse effects on excluded countries and the lowering of border barriers around the world is crucial to minimising these effects The completion of the Doha Development Agenda by all WTO countries will reduce the risk of trade diversion associated with regional agreements and will decrease trade losses of countries excluded from agreements      Global Economic Prospects 2004 World Bank,2003 This is the 14th edition of this annual publication which analyses the global and national dimensions of the investment climate for developing countries in terms of the policy and institutional environment It considers the key multilateral trade issues and suggests policy options to help raise living standards in developing countries and reduce global poverty Topics discussed include the short medium and long term global economic outlook including driving forces commodity prices and capital flows exports from developing countries trade barriers and policies to reduce inequities in the world trading system trade in agriculture including possible changes in subsidies and the potential for liberalisation measures the temporary movement of labour within the General Agreement on Trade in Services GATS trade facilitation in the light of post September 11 security concerns the role of trade preferences exemptions from WTO rules and technical assistance to implement WTO trade regulations      International Energy Outlook ,2004-04      Assessing World Bank Support for Trade, 1987-2004 Yvonne M. Tsikata,2006 This evaluation of the Bank s assistance on trade related issues focuses on the period between fiscal years 1987 and 2004 The majority of developing countries have significantly improved their environment for trade and economic growth following over two decades of assistance from the Bank in trade reform. Arguably the developing world is more open today than at any time in recent memory. Developing countries have more than doubled their exports since the mid 1980s helping many of them to grow steadily. Exports and imports have risen as a share of the gross domestic product (GDP) across a wide range of countries fueled in part by China's remarkable trade performance and the growth in services trade. Trade policies have also been significantly liberalized. Average import tariffs have fallen steadily over the period although the fall in other forms of protection has been more gradual. Between fiscal years 1987 and 2004 about 81 percent of total Bank commitments went to 117 countries to help them better integrate into the global economy. This financing has been accompanied by a large volume of analysis in operational economic and sector work (ESW) research publications on trade and working papers on trade related topics. During the first phase starting in the 1980s the Bank focused largely on the traditional trade agenda related to opening up economies. During the second phase from the mid to late 1990s the Bank's emphasis on trade declined although the impact of earlier trade reforms was still playing out. In the third phase initiated with the collapse of the World Trade Organization (WTO) Seattle trade ministerial meeting in 1999 growing pressure to deliver on the Millennium Development Goals (MDG) and interest from development partners notably bilateral donors led the Bank to reappraise its trade activities. This phase has focused on the global trading system and behind the border barriers to trade. The Bank's trade activities during the period were led by a grade policy reform package supported by four components: import related, export related, exchange rate and foreign exchange management and industrial and other supporting policies. This assessment reviews project related outcomes and outputs to focus on the progress toward a more development friendly trading. Recommendations include addressing poverty distributional outcomes and external shocks in a balanced approach revisiting the balance between global and country agendas and strengthening operational links on trade issues and strengthening knowledge management efforts.

Global Economic Prospects, 2004, 2003. The Doha Development Agenda left open many contentious and important questions. This study analyses the most critical multilateral trade issues through the lens of development and suggests policy options more inclusive of developing countries and more conducive to poverty reduction.

Trade, Doha, and Development Richard S. Newfarmer, 2006. The role of trade in promoting international development is becoming increasingly important in our globalised world and the global trading system has the potential to help the world's poor if trading inequities can be remedied. This publication examines the key trade issues relevant to the ongoing multilateral trade negotiations and the evolution of the world trading system as a means to address barriers to growth in developing countries focusing on the Doha Round. Issues discussed include potential gains from trade liberalisation for developed and developing countries reforming trade in agriculture as a key to the success of the Doha Round markets for manufacturing and services trade facilitation TRIPs and the regulatory agenda the role of regional trade agreements and issues of aid for trade in order to help low income countries develop the infrastructure needed to participate in the global economy and benefit from new market opportunities      Global Economic Prospects and the Developing Countries World Bank,2000 This report deals with three issues that are central challenges facing developing countries as they participate in the global trading system      Trade and Development Report, 2004 ,2004 This annual report considers trends and prospects for the global economy and the international trading system capital flows and finance issues The second part of this year s report focuses on issues of policy coherence in development strategies international trade and globalisation It examines how trading relations are affected by international monetary and financial systems and how financial and monetary instability can affect the capacity of developing countries to participate successfully in the international trading system It also discusses exchange rate management at national and international levels and its contribution to job creation and poverty reduction      Economic Round-up ,2005      Changing Perceptions, Altered Reality Shahid Javed Burki,2007 Burki examines the various sectors of the economy that could become the source for sustainable growth Thoughtful public policy in the high potential areas could help the country join the ranks of Asia s rapidly growing economies      Growth and Integration World Bank,2006 The Annual World Bank Conference on Development Economics ABCDE brings together the world s leading scholars and development practitioners for a lively debate on state of the art thinking in development policy and the implications for the global economy The 17th conference was held in Dakar Senegal on January 27 2005 The theme of the conference was growth and integration which was divided into five topics growth and integration financial reforms economic development trade and development and investment climate      Trade Policy Research ,2005      Global Economic Prospects and the Developing Countries ,2004      Margin ,2005      Financing Development ,2007 As aid alone cannot finance development the emergence of new financing options is good news but it also raises challenges This book assess the changing landscape of international development finance from a global and a developing country perspective It looks at the policy implications for donor and recipient alike and provides recommendations on policy mechanisms for the use of both grants and loans in development finance and on the challenges of managing diverse financial flows at country level
