Eyewitness In The Crimea Michael Hargreave Mawson,2001 The thoughts of an officer at the forefront of the fighting portraying the daily hardships experienced by the soldiers      Eyewitness in the Crimea Michael Hargreave Mawson,2015-09-30 George Frederick Fred Dallas wrote 137 letters to his family and friends while on active service in the Crimea A company commander in the 46th Foot his first letters reflect a soldier s enthusiasm for the brilliant affair that awaits the British Army overseas Within weeks of arriving excitement turns to disbelief at the continual misjudgement of his leaders Poor preparation and divided command exposed the troops to surprise attacks from The Russe and to the appalling conditions of the Crimean winter By contrast Dallas reports on the casual bravery of his comrades recognise the true heroes of a mismanaged campaign Through these letters we relive the terrible perils of combat and siege warfare the author s almost miraculous escape from serious injury whilst continually witnessing his comrades slaughter the monotony of being entrenched in Sebastopol the utter confusion surrounding instructions to attack the mistakes at Inkermann and the Redan the wearying cold We also get an insight into the quieter moments in camp and the friendships forged between the men Supplemented by the editor s excellent footnotes and detailed biographical index this is a revealing and intimate history of all those involved in the Crimean War Publisher description      Eyewitness Accounts Battles of The Crimean War William H. Russell,2014-06-15 Amberley s new series of Eyewitness Accounts bring history warfare disaster travel and exploration to life written by the people who could say I was there      Diary of the Crimean War Frederick Robinson,1856      The Thin Red Line Julian Spilsbury,2005 Home in time for the pheasant season was the cheerful assumption of most British officers when the Army was shipped off to fight the Russians in 1854 But it was not to be After landing in the Crimea and beating the Russians in open battle the redcoats found themselves laying siege to the great naval base of Sebastopol There they endured a bitter winter in improvised positions desperately short of supplies and with next to no medical care Published to mark the 150th anniversary of the Crimean War Julian Spilsbury s narrative is drawn from the diaries and letters of soldiers of this most famous Victorian army From the initial landings in an exotic land to the battles the long months of siege and the final victorious assault the story unfolds through the words of the men and women who were there We follow a cast of extraordinary characters who one after another fall some to bounce back with almost superhuman resilience others to die at the incompetent hands of the Army s surgeons The Army s leading personalities are a collection of eccentrics some were short sighted some downright criminal But not one of them doubted the British would win no matter how dire the odds and this is why they ultimately prevailed      The British Expedition to the Crimea William Howard Russell,2018-05-15 Reproduction of the original The British Expedition to the Crimea by William Howard Russell      At Home and on the Battlefield Sir Frederick Charles Arthur Stephenson,1915      The War In The Crimea [Illustrated Edition] Lieutenant-General Sir Edward Bruce Hamley KCB KCMG,2014-08-15 The finest eye witness history of the Crimean War

Lauded at the time as the best history of the bloody and badly led campaign this edition has been richly illustrated with over two hundred and sixty maps photos and portraits of the battles individuals and places involved in the Crimean War General Sir Edward Hamley K C B initially served as an aide de camp to Sir Richard Dacres during the Russian War but as his substantive rank was in the Royal Artillery he saw most of his service with the guns during the Crimean War The Author was cited many times for his gallant conduct and bravery whilst working alongside the siege cannon in both the French and British Lines He survived the Crimean War to become one of the figureheads of the Victorian military establishment attaining the rank of Lieutenant General and holding the important post of the commandant of the Staff College

Excerpt from The British Expedition to the Crimea The British fleet is once more in Besika Bay but there is now no allied squadron by its side No British minister ventures to say that our fleet is stationed there to protect the integrity of Turkey If the record of what Great Britain did in her haste twenty two years ago be of any use in causing her to reflect on the consequences of a violent reaction now the publication of this revised edition of the History of the Expedition to the Crimea About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Expedition to the Crimea Lewis Edward Nolan, Alan James Guy, Alastair Massie, 2010 On 25 October 1854 during the Crimean War there took place probably the most memorable episode in the story of the British Army the Charge of the Light Brigade Ever since when people argue over the cause of the disaster one name recurs that of Captain Louis Edward Nolan What could he have possibly been thinking as he delivered the order which set the Light Brigade charging in the wrong direction Unfortunately Nolan was killed minutes later and therefore in no position to explain himself but now for the first time with the publication in full of his campaign journal everyone can discover what in the previous few weeks he had actually been thinking

Campaign in the Crimea George Shuldham Peard, 2009 War against the Russians from a British infantry officer When Peard undertook his recollections of his campaign in the Crimean War he was motivated by the conviction that at that time there were no first hand accounts available to the public written by serving soldiers Time may have rectified that impression but this certainly means that Peard's was one of the earliest such accounts to be published It is a riveting account by a front line officer and within its pages the author takes us through the battle of the Alma Balaclava the siege of Sebastopol and Inkerman Many interesting details of life on campaign and in the camp are included as well as eyewitness reports of the famous Charge and the thin red line     Echoes from the Crimea Roger Chapman,2004     Diary of the Crimean War Frederick Robinson (médecin militaire.),1856     Memorials of the Brave, Or, Resting Places of Our Fallen Heroes in the Crimea and at Scutari John Colborne,Frederic Brine,Crimean War Research Society,1987     A Gallant Grenadier: a Tale of the Crimean War F. S. Brereton,2014-06-03 You positively annoy me Joseph and make me feel more angry than I care to admit The matter is a serious one and I am deeply distressed After thirteen years of the most careful bringing up there is complete and absolute failure It is a miserable reward And then to make matters worse you laugh at me and egg the lad on to even greater crimes Fiddlesticks sir Humbug A miserable reward indeed was the spirited answer No one but yourself would admit it He is a fine lad though a little wild I will own but for all that a generous good hearted boy Let him alone Don t worry him with all these goody goody ideas There is plenty of time for him to settle down and meanwhile he will come to no harm and I ll be bound will bring no discredit on you The speaker shook his head knowingly and helped himself to a large pinch of snuff How can you argue like that Joseph when you know what the lad has done the former speaker replied with much sternness I hold practical joking to be at any time disgraceful but when one s adopted son is one of three who actually laid a booby trap for the mayor of this town in broad daylight and made him a laughing stock for all then discreditable is the least one can say of it It is positively scandalous     Crimean Blunder Peter Gibbs,1960
