learning Another aspect to lower students' English learning motivation is the inappropriate use of the learning materials Moreover learners still lack a chance to immerse in the real language environment and the authentic cultural background to improve their comprehensive intercultural and communicative competence For the sake that the second language instruction provided in regular schools is limited in time many students even do not have enough time to learn and interact in the language In addition the students still learn English with the outdated teaching and learning strategies so that they are very afraid of opening their mouths and hearts to communicate with their peers and ask for help from the tutors This field project took advantage of the sources and theories from the study and practical applications of the intensive ESL camp programs to build a set of curricula and excursion activities which include the cultural assets of learners on a daily basis in the authentic and intercultural environments International students have the demand for immersive and short term language programs and this field project contributes to be compatible with their needs Intercultural communicative competence is an important facilitating factor in the acquisition of second language The materials curriculum exercises and excursion activities in the project can help international ESL students develop their English proficiency and intercultural communicative abilities This project can also fill the scarce knowledge currently on the topic of ESL extensive classroom and activities The teachers and curriculum developers can utilize this project as a kind of reference to organize their language teaching in ESL camp and guide their camp activities
