

1. Which of the following computer activities/games would be most beneficial during media time for students who are working on reading fluency?
 - a. Students can select from a variety of high-interest texts and read aloud what they see on the screen.
 - b. Students hear high-frequency sight and vocabulary words in their headphones and get points for "zapping" (clicking) the correct matching word on their screen.
 - c. Students practice typing in a keyboarding program to build their speed and accuracy in writing reports and papers.
 - d. Students can surf a limited and pre-approved number of internet sites to read on subjects of their choosing.
2. A teacher is fortunate to have many parent volunteers for the current school year, giving him parental help at least three times a week. He wants to utilize these volunteers in a way that will not only take into account their limited training, but will most benefit students. Which option should he choose?
 - a. Ask each parent to speak to the class about what kinds of literacy skills they use each day in their careers.
 - b. Enlist parents to help grade papers and presentations using a rubric.
 - c. Ask parents to listen to his students read challenging but manageable texts, one at a time, helping students identify and sound out unfamiliar words.
 - d. Primarily utilize parents' for non-instructional tasks, such as making copies, organizing the class library, monitoring the classroom during test time, etc.
3. Which of the following aspects of oral reading is the most important accompaniment to speed and accuracy?
 - a. Vocal expression based on punctuation and content.
 - b. Volume of the reader's/speaker's voice.
 - c. Interest level of the text to be read aloud.
 - d. Consistently increasing the number of words read aloud per minute.

 - b. Repeated oral readings combined with feedback.
 - c. Participation in vocabulary-building activities.
 - d. Utilizing speed-reading techniques often used in adult literacy courses.
5. In monitoring a group of elementary-age students' reading fluency, which of the following students may need extra or specialized instruction?
 - a. A student who reads an unfamiliar text more slowly than he reads a familiar text.
 - b. A student reading an independent-level text, finding approximately 1 in 25 words difficult to read.
 - c. A student reading an instructional-level text, finding approximately 1 in 5 words difficult to read.
 - d. A student who scores a 70% on a comprehension test.
6. Which of the following reading assignments would be most appropriate as a context for teaching students how to preview information to improve comprehension?
 - a. A written version of a popular movie that most of the students have seen outside of class.
 - b. A reading assignment from the students' science class that they will be tested on next month.
 - c. A novel the students read in English class last year.
 - d. A set of poems that will be studied next month during Poetry Week.
7. A sixth-grade teacher is preparing to begin a unit in which students will be reading a novel in class. She plans to use the novel to teach her students specific strategies to improve and monitor their reading comprehension. Which of the following techniques would likely be taught during class?
 - a. Discuss story elements such as exposition, climax and resolution.
 - b. Demonstrate the practice of stopping at the end of chapters to summarize and review the content.
 - c. Ask students to complete a review sheet before taking the unit test.
 - d. Practice decoding unfamiliar words throughout the book by using knowledge of frequently-used root words.
8. A teacher notices that her new student, Carl, has a hard time answering questions related to comprehension during class and has scored low on comprehension quizzes and worksheets. What would be the most logical first step in determining how to help Carl?
 - a. Encourage Carl to read all assigned texts at least twice before class to help him understand what he has read.
 - b. Provide Carl with story maps of what he will be reading to assist his comprehension visually.
 - c. Ask Carl to read aloud with his teacher individually so that she can ensure that he is reading with expected accuracy and speed (i.e., fluently).
 - d. Modify Carl's class work so that he is able to work on easier comprehension material until his skills are brought up to speed.
9. Which of the following would be the best strategy for helping eighth-grade students choose books that they will read independently and use to write book reports?
 - a. Provide two choices from which the students can pick that you know everybody can understand.
 - b. Allow students to freely pick their books, but require that they read a few pages aloud to you in order to ensure that the reading level is neither too easy nor too difficult based on their abilities.
 - c. Encourage the students to read a book that contains unfamiliar words and idioms so that they will be challenged to use context clues, dictionaries and other sources to build comprehension.
 - d. Establish no parameters on book selection to encourage free choice and promote students' excitement about the project.
10. Which of the following students is not performing "at grade level" according to TEKS standards and may warrant academic support or testing?
 - a. Karishma, seventh grade, looks panicked and becomes very quiet when asked to state her opinion about a particular subject in class discussions and rarely raises her hand when a question about text comprehension is posed.
 - b. Lynne, fifth grade, is able to comprehend most of what she reads in plays and in fiction, but sometimes has trouble understanding poetry.
 - c. Barron, sixth grade, can read fluently aloud and often recall concrete facts, but is rarely able to draw conclusions, make inferences, or understand figurative language.
 - d. Sebastian, eighth grade, lacks motivation to read much of what is assigned in class and frequently fails to complete his homework; he often contributes intelligently to class discussions.

Embracing the Melody of Appearance: An Emotional Symphony within Elar 117 Ss Practice Test

In a world consumed by monitors and the ceaseless chatter of quick conversation, the melodic elegance and mental symphony created by the written word often fade in to the background, eclipsed by the constant sound and distractions that permeate our lives. However, nestled within the pages of Elar 117 Ss Practice Test a stunning fictional treasure filled with raw thoughts, lies an immersive symphony waiting to be embraced. Constructed by an outstanding composer of language, that fascinating masterpiece conducts viewers on a mental journey, well unraveling the concealed tunes and profound influence resonating within each cautiously constructed phrase. Within the depths of the emotional evaluation, we will examine the book's main harmonies, analyze their enthralling writing model, and submit ourselves to the profound resonance that echoes in the depths of readers' souls.
