Excerpt from Elements of International Law Mr Wheaton after receiving the ordinary preliminary instruction graduated at the College of his native State now Brown University in 1802 During the ensuing three years he prepared himself in the office of Nathaniel Searle then among the prominent practitioners at Providence for admission to the bar His studies were from his earliest days of a character appropriate to the education of a publicist Besides his proficiency in the classical and mathematical departments he was particularly distinguished at school and college for his fondness for general literature and especially for historical research and the investigation of the political annals of nations In the spring of 1805 he went to Europe and though his desire for intellectual improvement and his sound moral principles would probably have proved an adequate protection against all improper temptations it was perhaps well for his future success that his father's moderate views of expense did not permit him at once to luxuriate in a great metropolis He established himself at Poitiers where there was a school of law His object seems to have been to acquire a familiarity with the use of the French language in which he had been early instructed while he availed himself of the opportunity to frequent the tribunals and study the civil law Indeed in this branch of jurisprudence Mr Wheaton might almost be deemed a pioneer among his countrymen Even Pothier whose works contributed so largely to the Napoleon Code had not then been made accessible to the American lawyer Nor had Kent and Story whose decisions derive so much value from their abundant stores of continental lore and both of whom had repeated occasion to appreciate the early studies of Mr Wheaton then assumed their places in the tribunals which they subsequently illustrated the one as Chancellor of New York the other as a member of the Supreme Federal Judiciary About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
