Singing Reconciliation: Inhabiting the Moral Life According to Colossians 3:16 Amy Whisenand Krall, 2023-10-30 The letter to the Colossians contains a series of moral instructions in Colossians 3:12-17 and includes the admonition to sing among them. This study considers how music making specifically singing supports moral formation according to the letter to the Colossians. Studies in ethnomusicology, anthropology of the voice, and music psychology offer useful frameworks for conceptualizing how a social practice like music making forms participants into a community and shapes how they know themselves, their community, and the world. With the aid of these frameworks, we find that the singing in Colossians 3:16 as a corporate vocal practice of music making enables the members of the church community to inhabit the story of reconciliation found in the Christ Hymn, Col 1:15-20.

Inaugurated Resurrection in Earliest Christianity Daniel W. Hayter, 2025-09-04 Daniel W. Hayter explores the concept of inaugurated resurrection within earliest Christianity, the view that believers have experienced a present resurrection with Christ in advance of their final resurrection at his return. He argues that belief in inaugurated resurrection is already discernible in Paul's own writings, in large part due to the influence of Scripture suggesting that the influence of Ezekiel 36:37 on Paul's understanding of the gift of the Spirit helps to explain this belief. Paul saw inaugurated resurrection as a way of speaking of receiving the Spirit. Hayter thus examines the reception of Ezekiel 36:37 in Second Temple Jewish literature in order to situate Paul's own understanding of these chapters in the wider Jewish context and follows with an extensive exploration of Ezekiel 36:37 in Paul's own writings. He argues that Paul understood Ezekiel's vision of the resurrection of dry bones to have been fulfilled in the present in the gift of God's Spirit to those in Christ; that Paul's understanding of Ezekiel is then brought to bear on a close exegesis of Romans 6:1-14; and that Paul's view of the Spirit in light of Ezekiel 36:37 helps to explain the strong connection between inaugurated resurrection and baptism. Hayter concludes that far from being non-bodily, inaugurated resurrection by baptism in one Spirit implies incorporation into the resurrected body of Christ.

Resurrection and Parousia Joost Holleman, 2014-04-09 This is a traditional historical study of three ideas concerning the eschatological resurrection which Paul brings forward in 1 Corinthians 15:20-23: a) Jesus' resurrection forms the beginning of the eschatological resurrection; b) the eschatological resurrection will take place through participation in Jesus' resurrection; c) the eschatological resurrection will take place at the time of Jesus' parousia. The three ideas are investigated in the following way: Firstly, their occurrence and function in Paul is set out; subsequently, their origin is reconstructed; and finally, analogous Jewish concepts are compared. A critical review of earlier research on these ideas and a literary and historical exegesis of the relevant sections of 1 Corinthians 15 precede the investigations Journal of Biblical Literature, 1984 On Becoming a Catholic Regis A. Duffy, 1984 To Advance the Gospel Joseph A. Livingstone, 1980 Between Horror and Hope Sorin Sabou, 2005 Between Horror and Hope is a study of Paul's metaphorical language of death in Romans 6:1-11. The scholarly debate focuses on two main issues: the origin of the commentatio mortis tradition and its development. Dr Sabou argues that the origin of this terminology is original to Paul; that it was the apostle's own insight into the meaning of Christ's death: a death to sin and his understanding of the identity of Christ in his death as the anointed Davidic king which guided him to create this metaphor of dying to sin as a way of describing the relationship of the believer with sin. On the development of this language of death, the author argues that this language conveys two aspects: horror and hope. The first is discussed in the context of crucifixion in which Paul explains the believer's death to sin by presenting Christ's death as the death of the anointed Davidic king who won the victory over sin and death by rising from the dead. Paul affirms that believers are coalesced with what was proclaimed about Christ's death and resurrection, thereby allowing him to assert that the releasing of the body from the power of sin is a result of crucifixion. This crucifixion is the condemnation inflicted on our past lives in the age inaugurated by Adam's sin, and this is such a horrible event that believers have to stay away from sin since sin leads to such punishment. In contrast, hope is presented in the context of burial. The believer's burial with Christ points to the fact that they are part of Christ's family, and this is accomplished by the overwhelming action of God by which he pushes us toward the event of Christ's death: an act pictured in baptism. It is this burial with Christ that allows believers to share with Christ in newness of life. Beyond the Controversy Stephen I.
