Human Learning Jeanne Ellis Ormrod, 2008 Human Learning fifth edition is the leading text on learning theories applied to education It covers a broad range of learning theories including behaviorist social cognitive cognitive and developmental Complex learning and cognition including metacognition transfer and social processes in knowledge construction are also covered as is motivation Coverage demonstrates through the author's extremely lucid and engaging prose how different concepts relate to one another The book provides dozens of proven examples and emphasizes meaningful learning that makes the fundamentals of these theories comprehensible to students with little or no prior coursework in psychology Key revisions to this book include a thoroughly updated section on behaviorism a new separate chapter on the developmental theories of Piaget and Vygotsky and a reorganized motivation section      How Children Learn to Read Ken Pugh, Peggy McCardle, 2011-02-25 This book brings together information about the neurobiological genetic and behavioral bases of reading and reading disabilities Research findings and intervention approaches by leaders in the field are presented The volume provides essential reading for a range of researchers clinicians and other professionals interested in reading and reading disability      Learning Disabilities Corinne Roth Smith, 1991 This fourth edition examines the characteristics of individuals with learning disabilities and how their success is mediated by the demands and attitudes of their families and school environments The book takes an ecological perspective on learning disabilities A focus on multicultural diversity issues is included in special sections throughout It is written in a readable style with many anecdotes and over 45 personal vignettes contributed by individuals with learning disabilities their parents teachers and psychologists Topics to this new edition include the concept of learning disabilities causes of learning disabilities task and setting contributors academic development social emotional development assessment and more Educators of students with learning disabilities      Medical and Health Care Books and Serials in Print, 1986      Reading in the Brain Stanislas Dehaene, 2010-10-26 Brings together the cognitive the cultural and the neurological in an elegant compelling narrative A revelatory work Oliver Sacks M D The act of reading is so easily taken for granted that we forget what an astounding feat it is How can a few black marks on white paper evoke an entire universe of meanings It's even more amazing when we consider that we read using a primate brain that evolved to serve an entirely different purpose In this riveting investigation Stanislas Dehaene author of How We Learn explores every aspect of this human invention from its origins to its neural underpinnings A world authority on the subject Dehaene reveals the hidden logic of spelling describes pioneering research on how we

process languages and takes us into a new appreciation of the brain and its wondrous capacity to adapt      The Dyslexia Debate Julian G. Elliott, Elena L. Grigorenko, 2014-03-24 The Dyslexia Debate examines how we use the term dyslexia and questions its efficacy as a diagnosis While many believe that a diagnosis of dyslexia will shed light on a reader's struggles and help identify the best form of intervention Julian G Elliott and Elena L Grigorenko show that it adds little value In fact our problematic interpretation of the term could prove to be a major disservice to many children with difficulties learning to read This book outlines in detail the diverse ways in which reading problems have been conceptualized and operationalized Elliott and Grigorenko consider the latest research in cognitive science genetics and neuroscience and the limitations of these fields in terms of professional action They then provide a more helpful scientifically rigorous way to describe the various types of reading difficulties and discuss empirically supported forms of intervention      Dyslexia, Learning, and the Brain Roderick Nicolson, Angela Fawcett, 2010-08-13 A unique overview of research on dyslexia and an account of the underlying causes at cognitive brain and neural system levels that provides a framework for significant progress in the understanding of dyslexia and other related learning disabilities Dyslexia research has made dramatic progress since the mid 1980s Once discounted as a middle class myth dyslexia is now the subject of a complex and confusing body of theoretical and empirical research In Dyslexia Learning and the Brain leading dyslexia researchers Roderick Nicolson and Angela Fawcett provide a uniquely broad and coherent analysis of dyslexia theory Unlike most dyslexia research which addresses the question what is the cause of the reading disability called dyslexia the authors work has addressed the deeper question of what is the cause of the learning disability that manifests as reading problems This perspective allows them to place dyslexia research within the much broader disciplines of cognitive psychology and cognitive neuroscience and has led to a rich framework including two established leading theories the automatization deficit account 1990 and the cerebellar deficit hypothesis 2001 Nicolson and Fawcett show that extensive evidence has accumulated to support these two theories and that they may be seen as subsuming the established phonological deficit account and sensory processing accounts Moving to the explanatory level of neural systems they argue that all these disorders reflect problems in some component of the procedural learning system a multiregion system including major components of cortical and subcortical regions The authors answer to the fundamental question what is dyslexia offers a challenge and motivation for research throughout the learning disabilities laying the foundations for future progress
