E-Government Strategy, ICT and Innovation for Citizen Engagement Dennis Anderson, Robert Wu, June-Suh Cho, Katja Schroeder, 2015-12-28 This book discusses three levels of e government and national strategies to reach a citizen centric participatory e government and examines how disruptive technologies help shape the future of e government The authors examine how e government can facilitate a symbiotic relationship between the government and its citizens ICTs aid this relationship and promote transparencies so that citizens can place greater trust in the activities of their government If a government can manage resources more effectively by better understanding the needs of its citizens it can create a sustainable environment for citizens Having a national strategy on ICT in government and e government can significantly reduce government waste corruption and inefficiency Businesses CIOs and CTOs in the public sector interested in meeting sustainability requirements will find this book useful

Improving Technology Through Ethics Simona Chiodo, David Kaiser, Julie Shah, Paolo Volonté, 2024-02-24 This book deals with the ethics of technology and addresses specific ethical problems related to some emerging technologies mainly in the field of computer science from machine learning models to extracting value from data to human robot interaction The contributions are authored mainly by scholars in ICT and other engineering fields who reflect on ethical and societal issues emerging from their own research activity Thus rather uniquely the work overcomes the traditional divide between pure ethical theory that disregards what practitioners do and mere R D practice that ignores what theorists conceptualize Conversely the reader is enabled to understand what ethics means when it is actually put into work by engineering researchers The book arises from a joint program between MIT and Politecnico di Milano aimed at training early career researchers in addressing the ethical issues of technology and critically reflecting on the social impacts of the emerging and even disruptive technologies they are currently developing through their novel research Overall it aims at spreading the task of developing technologies that from the beginning are designed to be responsible for human life society and nature
